The Communists are keeping up the military pressure against allied strongpoints in several areas of the country.

South Vietnamese and US units last week had several sharp engagements with enemy units in the vicinity of the Special Forces camp at Bu Dop in Phuoc Long Province. Casualties reportedly were heavy on both sides.

Northeast of Con Thien, Communist elements fought several sharp, although small-scale, actions with US patrols. The force involved is believed to be from the North Vietnamese 803rd Regiment which recently moved back to the Con Thien area after a period of rest and replenishment.

Sporadic, small-scale Communist attacks occurred in widely scattered areas of South Vietnam over the weekend. Enemy forces resumed their mortar attacks on the Bu Dop Special Forces camp near the Cambodian border on 2 December. [REDACTED]
